

ASL ABC/Number story

An ABC story in American Sign Language is a creative way to tell a short story using only the handshapes of the ASL alphabet, from A to Z, or Z to A, in order. Each letter becomes part of the visual storytelling — for example, the "A" handshape might represent a fist knocking on a door, while the "B" could be a flat hand pushing something away. Create your own short story using letters of the alphabet in order to practice handshapes! Be creative and make sure your story makes sense to the viewer!

	Poor 3 pts	Fair 4 pts	Excellent 5 pts
Correct use of ASL handshapes Sequential Order	Poor 5 or more letters were omitted or signed incorrectly. 5 or more were out of order.	Fair 2-4 letters were omitted or signed incorrectly. 2-4 letters were out of order	Excellent 0-1 letters were omitted or signed incorrectly. 0-1 letters were out of order.
The story is understandable	Poor There are 3 or more spots that do not make sense.	Fair There is 1 -2 spots that do not make sense.	Excellent The story is easy to understand the entire way through.
The story is unique and creative Facial Expressions/NMM/ Body Movement	Poor It appears as if no thought or effort was placed in creating this story. Little - no Facial Expressions/NMM/Body Movement were present throughout the story.	Fair Some thought was put into creating the story. A minimal - satisfactory use of Facial Expressions/NMM/Body Movement were present throughout the story.	Excellent The story was well thought out and creative. An above average - exceptional use of Facial Expressions/NMM/Body Movement were present throughout the story.
Fluid story	Poor The story was not presented well, there are several pauses	Fair There were slight pauses in the presentation.	Excellent There were no pauses in the presentation.

Feedback:

_____/20